

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Methods and systems for connecting a user and one or more parties in a telephone network are disclosed. Event data is received via a data network. The event data is associated with the user. The event data includes information for connecting with the one or more parties and a time period. The event data may be stored in a database the user may be connected with one or more parties based on the event data.